MEMORANDUM

Vice President of Educational Services

To: Dr. Glenda O. Barron
From: Dr. Mark A. Smith
Subject: October 2015 Educational Services Report

The Educational Services presentation will be presented by Dr. Christine Simon on the services she provides to learners and employees in her role as College Counselor. Outlined below are the reports from the educational services centers/departments.

COMMUNITY INITIATIVES AND SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Student Follow-up

Students Pursuing Additional Education is a report generated from the Automated Student and Adult Learner Follow-Up System (ASALFS). This report tracks students (graduates, completers and non-returners) who were enrolled in a Texas public community, state, or technical college during a given academic year and were enrolled in a Texas public institution the following fall. It lists aggregate numbers of students by academic, technical, tech-prep, or continuing education (CEU graduates only) next to the college or university they attended in the fall. The report lists the specific public schools where former Temple College students enrolled. This year, for the second time, Texas A&M-Central Texas took the number 1 position (120 students). Texas State University-San Marcos took the number 2 position (97) students beating out Texas A&M in College Station by 1 student. The University of Texas in Austin took the fourth position (39) with Tarleton University and Texas Tech (37) tying for the 5th/6th slots.

The report also indicates that many Temple College students return to Temple College for additional education after they have completed a degree or certificate. Temple College led the 2-yr college list with 125 graduates returning. Rounding out the top five list of community colleges to which Temple College students transferred were Central Texas College, Austin Community College, McLennan Community College, and Blinn College.

Altogether, 1,139 former Temple College students continued their education in a public higher education institution in Texas in the fall 2014. Of that number, 611 transferred to Texas public universities, 11 transferred to public health science institutions, and 392 transferred to community colleges excluding the 125 that returned to Temple College.

Student Follow-up and Career and Technology

The Adult Learner Follow-Up System (ASALFS) also includes a report on employment and additional higher education. Career and Technology courses are evaluated on success outcomes which include employment placement and additional education. Since the collaboration between Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board and the Texas Workforce Commission is limited to students in their respective databases, the individual career and technology programs in the state are given the opportunity to provide additional data based on individual follow-up. Many times the departments have maintained connections with former students and can supplement the data obtained through the ASALFS.

Temple College career and technology departments are currently in the process of trying to find the individuals not found through ASALFS. The deadline for completion of the data entry is November 6, 2015. The success rate for Temple College programs, which is defined as employed and/or additional education, currently stands at 87%. The state standard is 85%. Each program must also meet the 85% standard.

Student Success Coach

Ms. Anjanette Mesecke, Student Success Coach, reports she continues the on-going contacting of the students required to attend the Educational Assistance Center for help with improving skills to retake the TSIA. Some students report that the lab is helping them. Contact with the students will continue throughout the semester.

There are various methods by which students are contacted regarding the Retention Alert cases submitted by their instructors. Methods of contacting students include: email, phone, and in person. Communication with instructors regarding the cases continues.

Ms. Dawn Manoleas, Student Success Coach, conducted several presentations to Learning Frameworks students on identifying educational and vocational planning options. She presented in the Computer Information Systems department on how to understand personalities and the impact these strengths and weaknesses have on educational success as well as vocational and relational success. She, along with Ms. Hatrice Freeman, presented information to students in the Fine Arts Division on resources available to all TC students. Ms. Manoleas along with other Success Coaches and Advisors attended an Advising Training for Business & Continuing Ed, Dental Hygiene, Surgical Tech, EMS, and Nursing areas to gain further knowledge and understanding of the various programs and options available for Temple College students.

Ms. Manoleas also worked as a liaison with the Student Success Division on hiring two Academic Tutors that will be covering the Athletic Study Hall times set up to provide further support for athletes. With the closing of the TRIO program, Ms. Manoleas has been working with instructors and students to hire and train additional tutors that can serve those students who have requested help. She also interacted with various division directors to determine other students who might be qualified and available to serve these tutoring needs.

Testing

Ms. Stephanie Perkins, Testing Center Director, reports that overall in the month of September 420 students have tested at the main campus testing center and 119 students have tested at the EWCHEC-Hutto testing center. Tests administered include the TSI Assessment, GED, ACCUPLACER, TEAS-V, HESI-A2, CLEP, classroom exams, and proctored exams from other colleges/universities.

The Testing Center is pleased to announce that we have become a fully-funded CLEP institution for military testing candidates that have funding through the Defense Activity for Non-Traditional Education Support (DANTES) program. This means that Temple College will not charge the administration fee associated with taking the exam, making the testing candidates pay $0 to take a CLEP examination. We are excited to offer this opportunity to our military population, both for current students and the community.

The Testing Center has begun to schedule TSI Assessment dates for the ISD's in our service area. Ms. Angie Ybarra, Testing Coordinator, is looking forward to serving our dual credit partners through testing.

Transfer Mission

Comprehensive community colleges have a dual mission—to provide career and technical certificates and degrees leading to employment and to provide academic preparation for students transferring to a university. The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board's Automated Student and Adult Learner Follow-Up System (ASALFS) tracks graduates, completers, and non-returners from an academic year for employment and/or additional education. The system generates a series of reports by which colleges can monitor the success of their graduates. One of the reports specifically addresses the community colleges' transfer mission. This report, titled ASALFS Students Pursuing Additional Education, tracks students (graduates, completers, and non-returners) who were enrolled in a Texas public community, state or technical college during a given academic year and were enrolled in a Texas public institution the following fall.

Through this report, colleges can see the matriculation patterns of former students to universities, health science centers, and other two-year colleges. This information can be helpful for college staff in determining how to ease the transition of students from one higher education institution to another or in establishing priorities for specific articulation agreements. The report lists the specific public schools where former Temple College students transferred. This year, for the second time, Texas A&M—Central Texas took the number 1 position (120 students). Texas State University—San Marcos took the number 2 position (97 students) beating out Texas A&M in College Station by 1 student. The University of Texas at Austin took the fourth position (39) with Tarleton State University and Texas Tech (37) tying for the 5th/6th slots.

The report also indicates that many Temple College students return to Temple College for additional education after they have completed a degree or certificate. Temple College led the 2-year college list with 125 graduates returning. Rounding out the top five list of community colleges to which Temple College students transferred were Central Texas College, Austin Community College, McLennan Community College, and Blinn College.

Altogether, 1,139 former Temple College students continued their education in a public higher education institution in Texas in the Fall 2014. Of that number, 611 transferred to Texas public universities, 11 transferred to public health science institutions, and 392 transferred to community colleges excluding the 125 that returned to Temple College.

Transfer Success

The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board tracks the graduation rate of 2-year college transfer students. The report, which is available by institution, follows the transfer student four years after they transfer to the university. The graduation rate is based on whether the transfer student graduated within the four years at the same or another public university in the state of Texas. The chart below shows the graduation rate for Temple College transfers with a comparison to the statewide average for community colleges and the 6-year graduation rate of students who began their higher education careers at a Texas public university.
